

Hello!

I'm Jeannette Kitlan, creator, designer, and author of Row by Row Junior.

I'm a fabric lover and sewing enthusiast from a very young age. I liked it so much I earned a BS in Clothing and Textiles from Penn State.

I won the Mid-Atlantic's "Make It Yourself With Wool" contest and worked as a Bridal Consultant back when department stores sold wedding dresses.

I taught Fashion Merchandising at a business college and took 14 years off to be a stay-at-home mom to my four kids.

That's when I created the "Children's Sewing School" in my home. At one point, I had over 40 children enrolled. "I made it myself" was our motto.

In 2001, I opened Endless Mountains Quiltworks. It was chosen by Quilt Sampler as one of America's Top Ten quilt shops in 2007. Woohoo! And in 2010, I was Woman Entrepreneur of the Year for Eastern Pennsylvania.

I live in a restored farm house and my kids are all graduated from college now.

In early 2015, I closed my shop to care for my mother, a retired Home Economics teacher, who nurtured the love of sewing in my life.

She's passed away now so I've returned to teaching children to sew. I want to help you teach them too.

Row by Row Junior is a great program.

You'll love it!

Jeannette
